Powerful Practice & OTIPM: Planning and Implementing Authentic Occupational Therapy Services

presented by Professor Anne G. Fisher, ScD, OT, FAOTA

29. – 31. October 2023

Overview

This 3-day course is ideal for occupational therapy clinicians, educators, students, and researchers who want to do more to harness the power of occupation and implement authentic occupational therapy services.

The course is based on the idea that occupational therapists:

- are challenged to deal with and overcome the many constraints they face in practice, education, and research,
- want to experience ownership and pride in what they do,
- have a deep need – a longing – to practice as occupational therapists and advance our profession.

This course is based on the text, Powerful Practice: A Model for Authentic Occupational Therapy (Fisher & Marterella, 2019). The text offers occupational therapists with a practical guide to providing occupational therapy services across settings.

The course will address how occupational therapists:

- overcome, minimize, or work around the constraints they face in practice;
- reason about the complexity of occupation using the new Transactional Model of Occupation, one that is informed by occupational science;
- critically evaluate the evaluation and intervention methods they use and consider how they can modify their practices to ensure they are legitimate for use in authentic occupational therapy;
- use the Occupational Therapy Intervention Process Model (OTIPM) to guide the implementation of authentic occupational therapy services;
- implement observation-based performance analysis of their clients' quality of occupational performance; and
- accumulate practice-based evidence to support the power of occupation.

Lectures, video case examples, discussions, and extensive opportunities to practice enable the course participants to reflect on and learn strategies they can apply to improve their practice, educational activities, and research. The occupational therapists who take this course find that they leave inspired to embrace their unique expertise as occupational therapists and to make their practice more centered on occupation.
